Giggs retrial off as lawyers drop the case

FORMER Man United footballer Ryan Giggs' retrial later this month on domestic violence charges has been abandoned after lawyers withdrew the prosecution.

Giggs, 49, was accused of controlling or coercive behaviour towards his ex Kate Greville, 39, between August 2017 and November 2020. He denied the offences and underwent a trial, last August when the jury failed to reach any verdicts. Now prosecutor Peter Wright KC told Manchester Crown Court that the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) were dropping the case.

2026 Games under threat

THE 2026 Commonwealth Games are in doubt after the Australian state of Victoria pulled out due to budget blowouts. The Commonwealth Games Federation (CGF) struggled to find a host before Victoria volunteered in April 2022. But the premier said the projected cost had now tripled and become "well and truly too much" for the state to bear. CGF called the decision "hugely disappointing" and said it is "committed to finding a solution". The Games have only ever been cancelled during World War Two.

VICTORY OR BUST!

WOMEN in Ukraine are baring it all to support their troops and boost morale. Ukrainian women are flashing their bustiers at fighter helicopter pilots as they do daily flyovers. Maksym, a pilot who declined to give his last name, shared that he and his fellow airmen have been flying daily missions to Bakhmut, an eastern city in Ukraine. The men fly Soviet-designed Mil Mi-8 helicopters as low as 15 feet above the ground. The low-flying routes allow them to avoid Russian air defence and get a good view of the boob-scape. He said that his crew saves the GPS locations of places where they spot a flasher and appreciate the flash of fun support amid the war. It's widely agreed that Ukrainian woman, like busty stunna Marilyn Sekova, have the best boobs in Europe. Maksym shared that one woman even proposed to a pilot using a handmade sign. The pilots try to reciprocate the civilian engagement when they can. Maksym said that his team recently dropped a towel-wrapped bottle of cognac to an elderly man they spotted in the middle of the fighting. Unfortunately, Maksym's team has been dwindling, as he explained the Russian air force is much better equipped than the home team. Half of his unit has been killed off as Ukraine has limited ammunition left and no aircraft that can compete with Russia's newest models. "The Russians understand we can do nothing to them in the air," he said.

Food prices still rocket by 14.9%

FOOD price inflation has slowed for the fourth month in a row but remains "incredibly high", figures show. Market research firm Kantar said grocery prices rose by 14.9% in the four weeks to 9 July compared with a year ago, down from 16.5% in June.

It said Britons were spending more on supermarket promotions to save money. The UK's overall rate of inflation remains elevated though new figures are forecast to show a fall in June. Economists predict that inflation will drop to 8.2% in June, down from 8.7% in May. The Bank of England is still expected to continue raising interest rates.

The increase in the cost of the weekly food shop has been hitting households hard, and the Bank has warned it has taken longer than expected for falls in wholesale costs to filter through to shelves. But Fraser McKevitt, head of retail at Kantar, said grocery price inflation had been falling for four months in row.

Cops target 100 worst sex fiends

SCOTLAND Yard is employing counter-terror tactics to target violent sex offenders after drawing up a league table of the 100 most dangerous predators in London. Last year, there were 35,000 men reported to the Metropolitan Police on suspicion of committing violent offences against women and girls. Now as part of an innovative new programme, the Met is using technology and data to rank the most dangerous offenders. This includes covert surveillance and intelligence gathering, which will allow detectives to gather detailed evidence on the suspect's full offending history.

European heatwave to last for weeks, but don't worry ...in the UK it's pissing down!

PHREW: Us Brits are lucky we are having a normal summer

BRITISH tourists have been forced to flee holiday homes across southern Europe as wildfires ripped through tourist hotspots in Greece, Switzerland and Spain with temperatures soaring to 48C. There is no end in sight for the heatwave wreaking havoc across the Med that has seen tourists faint and thousands run for their lives from fierce wildfires tearing through resorts. It's thought that the furnace-like conditions could last for weeks. The sweltering heat soared even higher yesterday after a new cyclone called Charon, who in Greek mythology was the ferryman of the dead, hit Europe. Sardinia bore the brunt of the unforgiving heat, as temperatures edged closer to the record of 48.8C set in the Sicilian town of Florida in August 2021. Italian meteorological society president Luca Mercalli said: "We are seeing a heatwave the length of which is unprecedented." British tourists across the Mediterranean are being warned of the life-threatening dangers of the blazing sun, with temperatures reaching 44C in southern Spain. The 'unprecedented' heat is likely to continue into August in some areas, the World Meteorological Organisation said. Roaring The sweltering inferno has sparked wildfires that have ripped through holiday homes across Greece, Switzerland, Spain and Turkey, forcing thousands to evacuate from popular tourist hotspots. In Valais, Switzerland, more than 200 firefighters worked relentlessly throughout the night to douse the flames of a roaring wildfire but the flames engulfed villas in several popular mountain villages. Greece, which recorded 44C heat on Monday, started mass evacuations yesterday afternoon after a blaze which broke out in the village of Kouvaras forced hundreds of holidaymakers to flee. The wildfire, which started just 30 miles from the Greek capital of Athens, spread south towards the seaside resorts of Lagonisi, Anavyssos and Saronida and authorities have told residents to leave the area. Meanwhile, thanks to Brexit, the United Kingdom has escaped the inferno and rain is widespread.

ASYLUM BARGE ARRIVES IN PORT

AN accommodation barge has belatedly arrived at the port where it will house 500 asylum seekers as the Government's migration plans were poised to become law after ministers saw off fresh challenges by peers. Bibby Stockholm was pulled by a tug into Dorset's Portland Port, with the proposals to use it to house migrants under Rishi Sunak's bid to "stop the boats" crossing the Channel a month behind schedule. The barge's arrival came after a night of drama in which the Tory frontbench saw off five further changes being sought by the unelected chamber to the Illegal Migration Bill, including modern slavery protections and child detention limits. It marked a shock ending to the parliamentary tussle over the flagship reforms that had threatened to go to the wire ahead of the summer recess. The cessation of the stand-off between the unelected chamber and MPs during so-called ping-pong - where legislation is battled between the Lords and Commons until agreement is reached - paves the way for the Bill to receive royal assent. The reforms are a key part of Prime Minister Rishi Sunak's bid to deter people from making hazardous Channel crossings.

I'D SWING INTO THE BACK OF THAT LIKE TARZAN!

TARGET: Meg in her sultry jungle Jane photos

HOLLYWOOD babe Megan Fox got back to nature in a new photo shoot shared on Insta, and her fiancé Machine Gun Kelly sure liked the snaps!

The brunette actress, 37, who recently covered up a pelvic tattoo of her ex-hubby Brian Austin Green, wore a skimpy bikini as she posed in a tree for the image she shared online.

Emo Girl rapper Machine Gun Kelly was quick to type out: "If this is what a wild animal looks like, I'd let it maul me!"

Transformers star Megan adapted a sort of Jane of the Jungle persona while scantily clad in a Oséree string bikini.

But when the photos were shared on the website of the hate-filled Daily Mail, vile sexists could not resist making off-colour comments.

One leered: "I'd swing into the back of that like Tarzan."

By TRICIA DAVIDSON
news@sundaysport.co.uk

Another slavered: "When Tarzan shows up he has a little work from behind," suggesting the Lord of the Apes may like to penetrate Megan's lovely vagina with his erect jungle penis in so-called "doggy style", before ejaculating while making his famed jungle-yodel and spanking Meg's buttocks.

Upcoming

Megan can be seen on the big screen next in the upcoming Expendables.

She has teamed up with Expendables vets Sylvester Stallone, 77, and Jason Statham 55, to take on an arms dealer with enough manpower to supply his own private army.

Wife poses as doc to shag hubby

A WIFE stole a doctor's medical gown to sneak into a hospital ward so she could have SEX with her husband.

A shocked nurse walked into the emergency room, in the northern Italian city of Padua, to find the woman romping half-naked with her 31-year-old partner on a hospital trolley.

When questioned, the tipsy woman, 40, tried to claim she was on the medical staff.

But she was quickly detained and handed over to the police.

The fake doctor now faces charges of unauthorised practice of a profession and impersonation.

Lydon: Putin owes us for cancelled gig

ROCK star John Lydon claims he's owed money by Vladimir Putin.

The former Sex Pistols frontman had been due to play a gig in Ukraine with his band Public Image Ltd before the Russian invasion in February last year.

And he blames the tyrant for leaving him out of pocket after the show was cancelled.

Ripped

Asked for his worst decision, the 67-year-old (above) said: "Playing in Ukraine with PiL just before the Russian invasion. We got ripped off. The promoter didn't turn up with the money."

"They left us stranded and we had to get out of the place as quickly as possible."

"And foolishly I said in an interview, 'Now Putin can pay us what the Ukrainians owe'. That was a lead balloon of serious proportions."

MCDONALD'S HIT BY SEX STORM

MCDONALD'S has been accused of creating a toxic work culture of sexual assault, harassment, racism and bullying, with more than 100 current and recent UK staff speaking out.

Workers from the fast food chain – some as young as 17 – said they have been routinely groped and harassed at work.

The probe has led to the UK equality watchdog launching an email hotline for staff, adding it was "concerned" by the findings. One teenage employee in Cheshire alleged that a colleague 20 years her senior called her a racial slur word, asked to show her his penis and said he wanted to make a "black and white" baby with her.

Meanwhile, it was reported that a manager at a branch in Hampshire suggested a 16-year-old male worker perform sexual acts in exchange for vapes.

A current worker in Nottingham also alleged she was seen as "fresh meat" by male colleagues, while others said managers forced them to wear uniforms that were too tight for them.

One former worker, Emily, 22, said: "It's the expectation that if you work there, you will be harassed."

She left her branch of McDonald's in Brighton last year after a male colleague in his 60s continually stroked her hair in a sexual manner, making her feel uncomfortable.

Lucy, 22, who previously worked in one of the eateries in Norwich, added: "There is a saying at McDonald's, 'tits on tills' – boys in the kitchen, girls on the counter. The idea is to put attractive people at the front."

McDonald's employs more than 170,000 people in the UK across 1,450 restaurants. It has one of the country's youngest workforces with 75 percent of its staff being between 16 and 25.

Those who spoke out said that more often than not senior managers failed to act after workers made complaints about behaviour.

One worker told the BBC: "I think that they don't really think about their staff at all."

Suki: I feel best with nothing on BRITISH actress, model and singer Suki Waterhouse says she feels most beautiful with nothing on.

The 31-year-old (above) said despite walking the catwalk for luxury fashion brands in haute couture, she admits she feels most comfortable "just with nothing on... being in your own skin".

Suki, who starred in Daisy Jones & the Six, said: "That sounds weird, but it's about being comfortable. Sometimes, I feel at my best when I'm clean in my joggers, really engrossed in something around the house."

"Just being in your own space, with nothing else around you and no pressures to look good."

"Maybe I'm playing guitar or piano, where you're just sitting with yourself and can kind of investigate your own brain. I love that kind of solitude."

She added: "What we wear matters... people may say they don't care about clothes, but they do in some way – fashion is about who we want to be in the world. It's fascinating."

Sex workers ban at Scotland Yard

OFFICERS in Britain's biggest police force have been banned from using HOOKERS under new vetting guidelines.

It is the first time the use of sex workers has been specifically banned by Scotland Yard, having previously dealt with incidents under general misconduct regulations.

Cops must also declare all romantic relationships and have been reminded they must tell the force of any windfall over £5,000 under tighter guidelines issued in April as part of a drive to restore public trust in under-fire police.

The Met has tightened up vetting following a number of scandals involving its officers including murderer Wayne Couzens and serial rapist David Carrick.

It has also revisited more than a thousand historic reports previously made against officers for alleged sexual offences.

ZARA: NO REGRETS OVER LOVE ISLAND SEX

'What happened, happened'

Has randy star Leo tweaked those teats?

NEELAM Gill showed off her incredible figure as she stepped out at the Vogue x Self Portrait party in London.

The model, 28, put on a glitzy display as she went braless – showing off her pert teats in a sheer sparkling mesh gown for the bash at Chiltern Firehouse.

It's been rumoured that Hollywood shagger Leonardo DiCaprio has been hanging out the back of it, despite claims he only dates women aged 25 and under.

Neelam joined the likes of Rita Ora, Shakira and Emily Ratajkowski as they partied the night away at the bash, hosted by Edward Enninful.

Her outing comes after Neelam sparked romance rumours with Leonardo (below) after they were seen enjoying an evening out with his longtime friend Tobey Maguire.

BACK THEN: Zara slept with co-star and lost crown

ZARA Holland has spoken out about her controversial time on Love Island back in 2016, after previously calling the backlash to her participation in it "horrific".

The 27-year-old was stripped of her Miss Great Britain crown, which she had won the previous year, for having sex with fellow contestant Alex Bowen on the second series of the popular ITV2 dating show.

A statement released by the national beauty pageant contest shortly after the episode had aired said that it could no longer "promote Zara as a positive role model", before adding that she "did not uphold the responsibility expected of the title".

The crown was then reallocated to runner-up Deone Robertson, who had previously held the title of Miss North Lanarkshire.

At the time, Zara said that she "regretted" her actions on the show.

"You know when you're in the moment and it just happens," she said on Love Island after hearing the news.

"That's really not like me at all. Why couldn't we have just gone to sleep?"

In a new interview, however, Zara insisted that there is "no point" in wishing that she'd behaved differently.

"What happened, happened, it was seven years ago and I can't go back and change anything," she said.

And Zara praised the changing attitudes to sexuality in the media.

"Women are definitely owning their sexuality more on TV now, which is great," she said. "It's also good that ITV had limited what they show to the public, as that will help reduce the trolling that people experience."

Zara, who recently married construction worker Elliot Love in Greece, also said that "everything was really hard to process" when she first exited the villa. Referring to the transition back into normal life as being a "whirlwind", she said that she would "have handled it differently" had the same thing happened now.

"I'm older, and I like to think wiser, and I know I did nothing wrong," she added.

After leaving the villa, Zara appeared on Loose Women alongside her replacement, Deone, to discuss the controversy.

She explained that, as a "massive lightweight" she had forgotten the cameras were rolling after having a few drinks.

When asked by the TV panellists if she would have accepted to take the crown had the roles been reversed, Zara said: "No. In my opinion, if it was the other way around, I probably say I would stand up for women... I wouldn't. No I wouldn't."

ACTRESS Kristin Davis says that she has no intention of ever getting married.

The 58-year-old, who played Charlotte in Sex and the City and its latest spin-off And Just Like That, told Clea Shearer and Joanna Teplin's Best Friend Energy podcast: "We have very different lifestyles... I have never been married, it's not my thing. I was never focused on it. It was never a goal."

Kristin, who once "lost sleep" ahead of her Friends cameo, went on to reveal that it "took some acting" to authentically present Charlotte's obsession with marriage.

"I would stress out on those days where I would have a paragraph on a page of all... the rules and the marriage. And oh my God, I would just be like, 'How am I going to do this and make it real and believable?'" she added.

"I'm not really a wedding girl but, you know, Charlotte loved it, so I loved it."

Oily priest held for tourist tug

A GREEK Orthodox priest has been arrested for wanking off a tourist and pretending it was part of a religious ceremony.

The incident occurred at a monastery on the Greek island of Rhodes where an Estonian tourist and his girlfriend met the padre during their holiday.

The tourist accidentally left behind a crucifix he had purchased and the priest invited him back to retrieve it and claimed he wanted to give him a special gift.

The 49-year-old priest allegedly "anointed the genitals" of the Estonian tourist with holy oil in a small reception room.

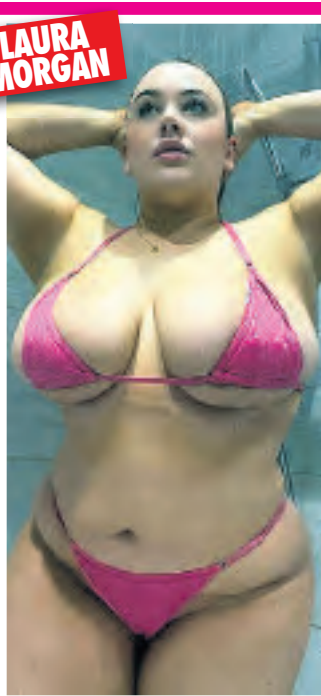

Feeling bewildered and embarrassed by the incident, the tourist then decided to report it to the local police.

Authorities nicked the priest and charged him with "insulting the sexual dignity" of the tourist.

A police source said: "Ah, the old anointing with holy oil... oldest trick in the book!"

FRAUDSTER CHOPPED UP HIS MUM

MURDER
RAP: Troy Mitteness

Remains thrown in drainage ditch

A MAN has been charged with murdering his 82-year-old mum then throwing her dismembered body parts into a roadside drainage ditch.

Troy Mitteness, 56, admitted to stabbing Sandra Mitteness in June 2022 then dismembering her body days later.

He then scattered her remains along the ditch as he drove from Burnsville to Appleton in Minnesota. Mitteness killed his mother because he spent all her money and she was starting to grow suspicious, cops said.

Dakota County Attorney Kathy Keena added: "The facts alleged in this case make it one of the most horrific and disturbing cases I've experienced in the course of my 34-year career."

Fraud

In June this year, police started investigating Mitteness for fraud.

Before authorities even learned of Sandra Mitteness's disappearance, they discovered that stolen money was being deposited into her bank accounts.

Troy originally told investigators that his mother was in South Dakota, but then admitted she had died on June 14, 2022.

By BRAD CHADWICK
news@sundaysport.co.uk

Investigators talked with relatives, who were also under the belief that Sandra died last year.

After speaking with them and finding an online obituary which listed a funeral home that had no connection to Sandra, police decided to open a missing persons probe.

Investigators also recovered blood from Sandra's vehicle which had been sold to a family member following her death.

Police also found blood on a mattress and stairs in her home.

Before he stabbed his mother in bed, Troy researched how to kill an elderly person.

He told police he put her remains in several large holdalls and eventually discarded two of them at a layby, with other bags thrown into the ditch.

Troy was charged with murder and mail theft last month, officials said.

Nuddy beach hit by Great Whites

BARE-arsed bathers have been warned after Great White Sharks were seen basking just off one of the world's most famous nudist beaches.

Lifeguards said they spotted at least three Jaws monsters off the coast of Black's Beach in San Diego, California, and are warning beachgoers to exercise extreme caution in the area.

The San Diego Fire Rescue Department posted a photo to the agency's Facebook page of a sign that was to be temporarily installed on the beach warning of the killer marine life.

According to the agency, the sharks were feeding on the carcass of a sea lion.

There have been no other reported sightings of the sharks that were thought to be 6, 8 and 9ft long.

TELLY presenter Anna Richardson has recalled the awkward moment one singleton was escorted off the Naked Attraction set after getting too "excited".

The 52-year-old explained on the Andy Jay Podcast: "A couple of seasons ago, there was a young man who I think might have been in the pink pod and he was getting a little bit excited about what was about to happen."

"So our lovely floor manager, Dave, had to escort him off the floor for a little while, just to calm down. And then he was brought back onto the set."

"It all happens. Boys being boys – you can't control your anatomy, can you? So, there's been a bit of excitement."

She also explained how men always want the studio to be warm, adding: "They're all doing that crafty tug behind the pods as they want their manhood to look its very best."

"They're always fiddling and touching, whereas the girls want the studio to be freezing as they want their boobs to look great."

Conference wife's naked outburst

A WOMAN burst into a waste disposal conference stark naked and began screaming that her husband was "a ct".

The female marched into Missouri Waste Control Coalition's Environmental Conference at Margaritaville Lake Resort, on the shores of Lake of the Ozarks, naked and shouting expletives about her husband, who was at the conference.

A witness said there were 500 conference attendees at what's billed "the largest environmental conference in the Midwest Region".

The woman was taken by paramedics to receive medical treatment, as she was bleeding, while the husband was questioned by a Camden County Sheriff's Office deputy, who had been called.

The sheriff's office said no charges were filed and the husband was not arrested.

Disgraced socialite makes enemies over sex gripes

MAXWELL FEARS SHE WILL BE KILLED IN PRISON

STABBING
WARNING:
Ghislaine
Maxwell

GHISLAINE Maxwell fears she may be KILLED in jail - after rattling on a cellmate's noisy sex sessions.

Tensions flared when Maxwell, 61, was placed in the same four-bed "cube" as a heavily-tattooed sex swap inmate nicknamed Batman, who began transitioning from female to male while locked up for a firearms offence.

The disgraced socialite first took exception to her new "bunkie" hanging boxers and socks over the metal rungs of the bed to dry, according to sources inside FCI Tallahassee in Florida, where Maxwell is serving 20 years for grooming Jeffrey Epstein's victims.

Their bickering turned even more bitter when Batman started sneaking a prison girlfriend back to the poky 5ft by 8ft living space after the low security Florida lockup's nightly 9pm headcount.

"The cubes don't have doors like regular cells, so Batman's girl would just creep in and climb up to the top bunk," an insider said.

"Maxwell would hear every grunt and moan as she was trying to sleep just a few feet below. The beds aren't bolted down and they can rock from side to side and make a lot of noise."

"Maxwell and Batman weren't getting along because of the undies thing, so this was the final straw. Inmates aren't allowed to have sex so she went and reported Batman to the unit's case manager."

Within days of Maxwell's complaint, Batman was moved to a new cube.

Maxwell then fell out with Batman's replacement, who had also been moved.

A source said: "Maxwell is racking up enemies and that's a dangerous thing to do in jail. She has been warned she could end up being stabbed."

Maxwell is nicknamed "prison Karen" because of the 400-plus petty complaints she's already lodged.

She was sentenced to two decades behind bars in June last year and the judge in her case recommended she serve her time at FCI Danbury in Connecticut, but she ended up at FCI Tallahassee.

Woman smuggled snakes down bra

A WOMAN was stopped at a border crossing when customs agents noticed her "weird" body shape and found five live snakes stuffed inside her bra.

The lumpy passenger had wrapped the serpents in stockings and strapped them to her chest in an attempt to smuggle them through the Futian Port in Shenzhen, a city that links Hong Kong to China's mainland.

Agents said that the unidentified smuggler's strange shape gave away her scheme.

Customs didn't disclose the woman's intent for sneaking the slithering creatures into the country, or what charges she now faces, but noted that the snakes were safely handed over to zoo staff.

PUB FLASHER IS JAILED FOR TUG

A PERVERT who exposed himself in a pub and furiously masturbated in front of other customers has been jailed.

David Nightingale, 75, who has previous convictions for exposure, entered the pub in Burnley, Lancs, at teatime on June 30.

Around an hour later the female victim noticed he had unzipped his trousers and was performing a lewd act.

When the victim told her partner what he was doing, Nightingale covered himself up and left.

He was later identified via CCTV later and arrested.

Nightingale, of Bacup, Lancs, pleaded guilty to exposure when he appeared at Blackburn Magistrates' Court and was sentenced to 18 weeks in prison.

He was also ordered to sign the Sex Offenders' Register for seven years.

DC Leigh Palfreeman, of Burnley CID, said: "His behaviour was disgusting and left the victim shocked."

Reese: Fear sex scene was not great experience

HOLLYWOOD beauty Reese Witherspoon says she does not have fond memories of filming her sex scene with Mark Wahlberg for 1996 thriller Fear.

The now 47-year-old (above) said: "I didn't have control over it," adding she'd requested a stunt double.

"It wasn't explicit in the script that that's what was going to happen, so that was something I think the director (James Foley) thought of on his own and then asked me on set if I would do it, and I said no... it wasn't a particularly great experience."

Oscar-winning Reese, who at the time was still years away from career-defining roles including Legally Blonde and Walk the Line, added: "I'm not traumatised by it, but it was formative."

"It made me understand where my place was in the pecking order of filmmaking."

HAVE you ever heard of Stick Out Your Tongue Day?

Yes, it is a thing – we found it on the internet.

Why there is a National Stick Out Your Tongue Day remains a mystery.

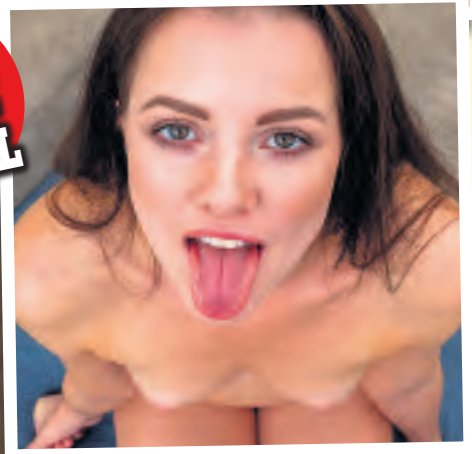

It doesn't even seem to be some half-arsed PR creation to flog tongue-related products.

So let's just accept that someone came up with National Stick Out Your Tongue Day and move on...

After we've looked at some topless ladies with their tongues stuck out.

I WANT TO GET F'ED NOW! COVER ME IN YOUR SPERM! 09823 462 541

MY wildest fantasy is to go to a sex dungeon and role play as a super controlling dominatrix.

I've heard about these fetish clubs that have all the BDSM gear you could ever dream of... sex swings, bondages cages and whipping benches. And essentials hung up on the wall and instantly accessible such as handcuffs, floggers, dildos and nipple clamps.

I've never done anything like this but it's definitely in my nature to be dominant in the bedroom... I could have so much fun locked in a room with a submissive sex slave.

I'd love to dress up for the part in a tight leather catsuit with really tall high heels.

My slave would call me Madam and I'd order him to crawl on the floor and lick my shoes. He's so eager to obey my every command.

If he was bratty and disobeyed me, there would be serious consequences... 10 whips for the naughty boy!

I would enjoy humiliating him with my cruel words. I'd call him a wimp and a sissy boy and he'd love it.

I'm getting all hot and bothered just thinking about this! This is definitely a bucket list fantasy that I have to explore.

Top cop busted over oral sex in car with hooker

COPS in Detroit who found a man being sucked off by a hooker were stunned to find it was the city's POLICE COMMISSIONER.

Bryan Ferguson (above) resigned in disgrace after he was caught in the act with the sex worker.

It is reported that Ferguson initially asked officers if they could "help him out".

"It has been an honour and a privilege to serve the residents of Detroit in police oversight," shamed Ferguson said in a statement.

"After consideration of the best interests of my family and the Board, I am choosing to resign as District 1 Police Commissioner effective immediately."

Undercover narcotics agents from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department spotted Ferguson committing a lewd act.

He said the hooker, who he did not know, hopped into his truck and "just pulled up right on me".

Children's porridge poisoner executed

A KINDERGARTEN teacher who poisoned students with porridge laced with toxic sodium nitrate, killing one child and injuring two dozen others, has been executed in China.

Wang Yun, 40, was taken to the execution ground in Jiaozuo and put to death.

Officials did not comment on the method of Wang's execution, but while most death sentences in China are carried out with a bullet to the back of the head, lethal injections are used in some cases.

In March 2019, Wang bought sodium nitrate after being involved in a row with a colleague over "student management".

The next morning at Mengmeng Kindergarten, she sprinkled some of the chemical compound into the children's porridge.

KINKY MISS LOVED IT UP THE BUM

JAILED:
Leah
Queen

AN award winning teacher has been jailed after she admitted repeatedly having BUM SEX with a student.

Leah Queen, 44, pleaded guilty to sexual assault having previously denied the affair with the lad.

Queen was a PE teacher at Gentry Intermediate School in Gentry, Arkansas.

The assaults occurred in 2010 when the high school student was aged 17 and Queen was 31.

But because Arkansas has no statute of limitations for sexual assault involving a minor, Queen could still face charges for her actions from 13 years ago.

Although the age of consent in Arkansas is 16, teachers are only allowed to have sexual relationships with students once they are 18.

The former student detailed in court documents how sexual contact between them started in the summer of 2010.

The affidavit stated how Queen and the victim went on to

By BRAD CHADWICK
news@sundaysport.co.uk

"engage in deviant sexual activity" – legal code for ANAL sex.

She had been on a camping trip when she kissed the victim.

A journal from the student also detailed various other instances of intimacy between the pair.

Queen had sex with the student in her office, her office bathroom at the school, and even at home.

Parents of the student, Queen's ex-husband, and another former school teacher all corroborated several details of the student's accusations.

Bed

An affidavit told how Queen befriended the victim after a basketball game and the pair began socialising outside of school hours.

Queen's ex also reported seeing the victim sharing a bed with his ex-wife on several occasions.

Benton County Circuit Judge Brad Karren placed Queen on six years of state-supervised probation and sentenced her to 58 days in Benton County Jail. She has also been ordered not to have any contact with the victim.

Queen had been a teacher in the Gentry School District for more than 20 years, and had initially pleaded not guilty but later changed her plea.

She also agreed to never be employed as a teacher again as part of the plea agreement.

Queen is required to register as a sex offender and must also now complete a sex offender treatment programme.

She had undergone a huge transformation in recent years as she embraced her role as a PE instructor, shedding hundreds of pounds in weight – dropping from 300lbs to 165lbs over the course of decade.

It is a huge fall from grace for the former teacher who in 2022 was made Teacher of the Year at her school and who in 2019 was given a Golden Apple Award having been nominated by one of her young students.

PERVY OAP BONKED COWS

NICKED: Delikar

A PENSIONER was nicked for shagging COWS after a video of him bonking two prize milkers went viral.

The recording was seen by people around the world and police in Wardha, India, detained Tulsidas Delikar, 65.

Following threats of demonstrations from activists, particularly cow vigilante groups, the police initiated action swiftly.

They said it happened in Hawaldarpura in Wardha city, next to an area where rubbish is dumped alongside some old government lavatory buildings.

It was later revealed Delikar is a cancer patient and cops said his relatives claimed him to be mentally ill.

Engaging

A complainant named as Pradeep Talmale was given clips and photos of Delikar engaging in sex with cows.

According to Talmale, one of his friends had shown him recordings from July 13 and 14 in which Delikar was seen performing sex acts on two different cows.

When the acts were seen online, the police made a swift arrest.

He is now facing accusations of unnatural sexual intercourse.

A medical exam of the accused will be vital, according to Satyavir Bandiwar, head of the Wardha police station.

Humans caught having sex with cows is surprisingly common in India.

#HOT'N'HORNY

JUSTIN DUNN'S ROOM 101

WHAT'S ANNOYING HIM THIS WEEK?

£30k in debt for a degree in David Beckham?

No thanks!

IF you ever find yourself missing "the good old days", let's be honest...

They never existed. Advances in science and especially technology have for millennia helped to propel the human experience ever forward.

Heat, for starters. No more rubbing sticks together for us when there's a radiator at hand – even if turning it up is now akin to enjoying creamed kitten soup and would ruthlessly bankrupt us.

Think planes, trains and automobiles. The invention of the telephone.

Television, radio, satellites. Ocean-going liners, universe-scanning mega telescopes, and the bloke who dreamt up finger spinners.

These days we read a story about tourist space flights without raising an eyebrow.

Then casually scroll past onto some pictures of a soap star who's forgotten to wear knickers.

It doesn't even occur to an old fart like me anymore just how clever it is that the phone/camera/computer in my hand can do all those functions and countless more.

Toffs

Pubs used to open at noon only to shut again three hours later because the toffs didn't want workers playing truant until their shift finished for the day.

Now they're open all day to give the unemployed something to do while they're not looking for jobs.

And, unless you are an aficionado of the tin foil hat and currently cowering under a kitchen table, we even escaped our atmosphere to plant a flag on the Moon.

All of it good stuff, and we should appreciate it.

But not absolutely everything "old" was bad.

As crazy as it sounds, back then men used to be men and women used to be women, for instance.

People with green hair didn't point at new-borns in maternity wards and hiss "racist" at them on the grounds the tots had dared to arrive on Earth via a "bonus hole" – God help me – with (drumroll) white skin.

MODERN COURSES AT UNI: Beckham or even kitesurfing

Protesters deliberately committing breaches of the peace – of the kind that likes to throw orange paint – would have received the sharp crack of a truncheon over their unwashed heads.

And universities trained doctors, teachers, dentists, vets, engineers and scientists, alongside posh people who didn't need a degree in the first place because Papa works in the City.

That was when uni, which I didn't go to and have never once regretted, sounded like it might have been fun.

Blowjob

When the "enlightenment" of attending meant Doris from halls was doing the blowjob game again and there were free bongs in the student union bar.

All of it rather unlike attending uni today.

These days, in between studying David Beckham or cramming for a degree in kitesurfing, you also must put up with mad people explaining how badly you think – and how you should now think – or be banished.

Then, after being brainwashed for three years by Marxist-infused misery along with lockdowns and lecturers' strikes, finally leave at least £30,000 in debt with a piece of paper guaranteeing a job collecting pint pots.

Now the Government claims it wants to crack down on what are pointless degrees offering no real future employment in those fields, and to instead introduce more of our young people to that mystery destination called a "workplace".

Unfashionable, yes.

But it used to work in the good old days.

Buy my porn and help out sick animals

FORMER Catholic school teacher turned OnlyFans model Courtney Tillia is using the success of her new career for a good cause.

The beauty (above) is now making as much as £76,000 a MONTH from her content and is teaching others how to make a career change.

And the animal lover also offered to reward her subscribers with free nudes to anyone who donates to the Marine Mammal Care Centre charity.

She said: "I've been an animal lover my whole life – when I was in junior school I adopted and funded a manatee in Florida."

"I'm now sending nude gifts to everyone who makes a donation to help the sick marine life in California."

"I'm even giving free links to my OnlyFans page for those who donate $50 or more."

The 36-year-old, who now lives in California, made the career change from teaching to porn because she said God had told her to do so.

Drones used to warn of sharks at Jaws site

DRONES are being used to keep an eye out for sharks along the coast made famous by Jaws.

Up to 60 drones are being deployed at beaches along Long Island, New York City, and Westchester County to help with shark spotting after five attacks already this year.

At a news conference New York Governor Kathy Hochul said the drones will provide an unblinking "eye in the sky" to enhance safety for beachgoers, with three sweeps a day.

As part of the plan, the state has activated scores of drones, adding dozens to the already existing set of 18, with the hope of protecting against dangerous shark encounters.

"People didn't think a lot about sharks until 1975, when Jaws came out," Hochul said. "We went from having one shark encounter in 2012 to eight a decade later."

DANIELLA'S BOOBS ARE KNOCKOUT!

ONLYFANS star Daniella Hemsley has left boxing fans stunned by flashing the crowd after securing her first win over Aleksandra Danielka.

The 22-year-old outpointed rival Danielka in the loser's bracket of the Kingpin High Stakes tournament in Dublin on Saturday night.

The social media star was announced as the winner via a unanimous decision, before then deciding to celebrate in X-rated fashion – lifting up her bra to expose her breasts for those inside the 3Arena, and fans watching at home on TV.

Hemsley later apologised for her astonishing actions in her post-fight interview, saying that emotions just got the better of her.

"I got a bit overwhelmed, I just wanted to express myself," she explained.

The beauty later took to Twitter with another naked snap, with the caption: "In case you missed it – I WON baby!"

But not everyone was impressed by the unusual celebration.

"It's going to be an interesting night as a parent having to explain to their kids what just happened," one fan wrote on Twitter.

"What the hell was that at the end? Got her tits out and dancing around... meanwhile, they have to apologise for swearing," said another.

Boxing superstar Claressa Shields also wasn't a fan, writing on Twitter: "Wow... this is a step backwards for women's boxing. Stop this shit."

Tyson

Others didn't mind the unexpected celebration, with one fan posting: "My granddad had Muhammed Ali, my father had Mike Tyson, I have Daniella Hemsley."

Aussie boxing champ Ebanie Bridges didn't think the celebration was bad for women's boxing, insisting influencer boxing is different.

Bridges wrote on Twitter: "She had great boobs to be fair haha and anyone who is going on about how it's bad for women's boxing, firstly it's influencer boxing and secondly, it's not going to affect it, let's be real."

HALFWIT YANKS RAGE AT MARGOT'S AUSSIE TWANG

THICKO Americans have blasted fit actress Margot Robbie for using an Aussie accent – even though she is from Australia.

Margot, 33 (left), has been slammed by some Yanks on social media for using her Oz accent on the press tour for her new film Barbie.

The blonde, who hails from Dalby in Queensland, talks with an American accent in the new film as she portrays the iconic doll opposite Canadian Ryan Gosling, who plays Ken.

"I don't like that on the press tour she's using her Aussie accent as if to let others know she's a good actress or something, as her American English sounds fine," one person wrote on social media.

"Is she here on a working visa? She lives and works in Hollywood, and that's where she gets her massive income from. Drop the accent," they then added.

Some were confused by the commenter and one person replied: "I think she knows Margot is Australian, it's a 'you're in our country, you have to talk like us' kind of thing."

And another posted: "I demand that from here on in, all movies played must use the accent of the country they're played in. There, that should do it!"

Margot has been looking incredible as she promotes Barbie around the globe, stunning in a series of pink outfits as she hits the red carpet and taking inspiration from a number of looks seen on the doll over the years.

THE WORLD FAMOUS AGONY Page

Dear Ashleigh,

I WALKED into the kitchen the other day and was confronted with my wife naked from the waist down with one foot on a chair playing with herself.

You might not think that unusual, but she was sliding the neck of a wine bottle in and out of her fanny.

I wouldn't have minded, but it was a bottle of my best and very expensive wine club claret.

I think she could have used something a bit more common, don't you? Like a supermarket plonk or something.

She made the neck of the bottle all wet and slimy with her fanny-batter and when I pulled the cork and poured some of the wine, it had a funny taste.

HG, Hants

Ashleigh says...

STOP whining or she'll pull your cork for good!

Dear Ashleigh,

I'M a driver for a timber company and recently took some fencing to some stables where there was a tasty stable girl in her early 20s.

With her firm arse encased in jodhpurs, I couldn't take my eyes off her.

She must have noticed because she led me to an empty stable where she kissed me grabbed my knob.

She soon had it out and sucked me off until I spurted into the hay.

I pulled down her jods and buried my face in her shaven quim.

Before long my knob was back in business and I took her doggy-style.

When I got back to the yard I found that the stables had ordered more timber and so I had a repeat performance the very next day.

She says she wants to whip me into shape. What do you think she means?

TG, North Yorks

Ashleigh says...

SADDLE up for the ride of your life!

I don't think I'm ready for a dildo in my ass!

Dear Ashleigh,

ME and my wife love to watch porn when we're having sex at home.

We have been happily married for six years and I'd say that our physical relationship just keeps getting better and better.

Our favourite thing at the moment is we like to turn the lights down low and whack the volume of a porno on full blast as we act out what we're seeing on our 60-inch TV.

I've got all the proper speakers attached and the moans and groans coming from the porn stars on screen seem to pop up all over the room sometimes!

It's like being in the middle of an orgy, when me and the wife start shagging, too.

Just the other day the missus came into the living room with a college girl outfit on and I knew I was in for a real treat.

Even though I was watching cricket and enjoying a couple of beers, I flicked it off for her and selected a filthy movie.

And I was delighted to see a woman being gently spanked, for being naughty.

Needless to say my girl assumed the position across my knee and I spanked her bum as she squealed in delight.

But the problem is, she spotted a new film called Dildo Your Man In The Ass. I'm not too keen on that, what should I do?

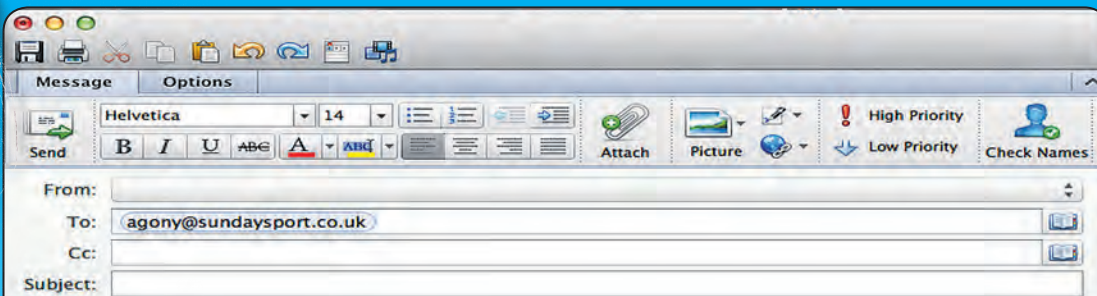

MM, south London

Ashleigh says...

Brace yourself!

AGONY IS BROUGHT TO YOU IN ASSOCIATION

WELCOME to the World famous Sport Agony page! No other newspaper's agony aunts can offer the level of advice – or experience – than our own Agony Angels! This week ASHLEIGH GEE has been reading through your letters. And here's her advice for you...

Boyfriend let-down led to my first lesbian sex

Dear Ashleigh,

I'M a 22-year-old beautician and I had my first lesbian experience the other day after my boyfriend stood me up on a date.

I'd really gone to a lot of effort for our night out. I was wearing my sexiest lingerie, which was all black and lacy, including my suspender belt.

Over that, I had on a very short and tight black dress which could barely contain my 36DD curves.

Anyway, after waiting for more than two hours for him to turn up, I jumped to my feet when I finally heard a knock on my door.

But I was incredibly disappointed when it turned out to be the two young women who had just moved into the flat next to mine.

They had brought two bottles of wine with them and were wondering if I would like to join them for a drink as a kind of welcoming thing.

Well, I invited them in and we'd soon polished off their two bottles and moved on to a third as I told them what a bastard my boyfriend had been that night.

It was at this point that one of them started to gently stroke my head as she told me what a fool my fella was for letting down such a "beautiful creature".

I don't know if it was the wine, or the fact I was so pissed off with my fella, but I suddenly started to feel horny as she ran her fingers through my blonde hair.

And I could definitely feel my pussy starting to moisten as her pal started to caress my stockinged thigh.

I think at that point I let out a little moan of pleasure – and the pair of them seemed to take it as a signal.

The girl who had been stroking my hair moved in to part my lips with her tongue as her pal moved her hand up to my panties and started to massage my clitoris.

Soaking

Within minutes they'd managed to get me out of my dress and laid me back on a rug on the floor.

It felt wonderful as one slowly parted my legs before lowering her head to thrust her tongue into my soaking wet vagina.

Her friend was licking and nibbling on my nipples as she gently placed her fingers in my mouth for me to suck on.

Very soon I was screaming in ecstasy as I orgasmed. I was so turned-on that I suddenly felt the urge to taste a woman, something I had never even dreamed about doing.

So I got one of the girls on the sofa, pulled off her panties, parted her legs and got my tongue to work on her clit and glistening labia, enjoying the taste as well as her moans of delight as I licked her intimately, and her pal did the same to me from behind.

But it was at this point that my boyfriend burst into the room, as I'd forgotten to lock the door.

Now he wants to split up with me and I'm devastated.

What should I do?

TJ, Cornwall

Ashleigh says...

FIND yourself a real man who would join in with your threesome.

Dear Ashleigh,

Nurse nookie was ideal cure for ills!

Dear Ashleigh,

I'm a normally healthy 30-year-old bachelor but for several weeks now I felt so tired all the time that I could hardly get out of bed for work in the morning.

My GP was puzzled by my condition, too, and told me to pop along and see his nurse who would take a blood sample.

That was fine by me because she is absolutely gorgeous with a fabulous figure almost bursting out of her tight white uniform.

For some reason she couldn't get the needle into a vein in my arm so she asked me to drop my trousers instead.

I was horrified – because I wasn't wearing any undies at the time, but she just said she'd seen it all before.

I did as I was asked but I was even more embarrassed when I got a giant stiffy.

Totally unfazed, she took hold of it and began wanking me off!

Then she slipped down her panties and inserted my throbbing member inside her.

She was a really excellent fk and it felt so erotic – having sex with a nurse in the surgery, knowing someone might walk in on us at any moment!

We did it quickly, standing up, and I had no trouble giving a sample this time.

And amazingly the next day my tiredness had completely gone.

What do you think of that?

GH, Oxon

Ashleigh says...

SOUNDS like you've found the perfect cure!

#HOT 'N' HORNY

THERE may be downsides to having massive knockers but lovely Lana Kendrick doesn't know any of them! The German babe can't understand when other big-boobed ladies moan about having a huge chest, because she loves her 32H whoppers!

Lana said: "Some girls don't know how lucky they are. I haven't paid for a drink since I was 18, thanks to my enormous busters."

"And I make a living from them, too, so when other busty women moan about suffering from bad backs and what not, I think they must be mad!"

She added: "Why does the Sport always say I'm from Birmingham? I'm from Berlin!"

"Do you think no-one will look at my big boobs if I'm not from England?"

LINDA LUSARDI

PROPERTY developer Carl Clark wants to splash his hard-earned cash on glamour legen Linda Lusardi.

The 61-year-old tycoon hails from the Big Smoke, but there's only one girl he wants to spend his life of luxury with.

His dream girl is still Linda – and with her 35C assets it's not hard to see why.

Carl said: "Linda is still simply stunning. I've got tons of cash and I go out and buy the Sport three times a week to see if her knockers are in.

There's no other girl's boobs I want to stare at!"

GAYNOR GOODMAN

BAR manager Jake Stevenson wouldn't mind serving up a little something personal for glamour legend Gaynor Goodman.

Jake, 58, from Willesden, north London, reckons he'd make the perfect mix for 32C babe Louise, from neighbouring Highgate.

He said: "I've worked behind the bar for years and I've been hoping I might catch a glimpse of Louise, but she's not showed up yet!

"I'm happy to ogle her boobs in the Sport for now, but if she ever does turn up I'll have an extra special cocktail waiting for her."

SCRIPTWRITER

Scriptwriter on a mission to Melbourne

MILTON Harris' Scriptwriter has a York return on his agenda before new connections take aim at the Melbourne Cup.

The four-year-old is a Grade Two-winning hurdler who took the Prestbury Juvenile Hurdle in November and went on to place fifth in the Grade One Jewson Anniversaries 4-Y-O Juvenile Hurdle at Aintree on the last run of his National Hunt campaign.

He was in action on the level in the Copper Horse Handicap at Royal Ascot over a mile and three-quarters, finishing seventh of 16 at 40-1.

Last weekend's John Smith's Silver Cup at York saw him step out of handicap company and into a Group Three, where he was only narrowly beaten, coming home a neck behind William Haggas' seasoned Group-race performer Hamish.

Stops

Both the course and distance seemed to suit and Scriptwriter will encounter both again as he holds an entry for the Sky Bet Ebor, York's headline handicap that offers £300,000 to the winner in late August – plus, for the first time, a guaranteed ticket to the 'race that stops a nation'.

"I was a bit frustrated at first as I think this horse gets to the front and then stops and that's what he did," Harris said.

"The jockey didn't really do much wrong, but a few yards ahead of the line he was ahead and after the line he was ahead again.

"He'll go back there for the Ebor next, the Group Three was an afterthought really as I saw it and thought he may as well give it a go as he handles any ground."

After the Ebor connections are hoping there is a date much further afield in the diary.

"He's been bought from existing owners of mine by Australian owners and the MISSION: Milton Harris plan for him is to run out there," Harris said.

"He'll go for the Ebor now and then into quarantine for Australia on a one-way ticket, I should think. The plan is for him to run once out there and then go for the Melbourne Cup.

"It's not set in stone, but you've got to have a dream, haven't you?"

Harris also provided an update on Knight Salute, the Grade One-winning hurdler who suffered a serious injury late last year.

The five-year-old is recovering at Harris' yard and is faring well after a tense time when his life hung in the balance.

"He's very well, he's not in any discomfort and he does have a good quality of life," said Harris.

"The plan is for him to go to one of his owners, who has some land and horses and is a good fellow.

"I don't think he'll ever race again, though you never know, but truth be told the vets would probably have had him put down."

"He wasn't in any pain and he's very comfortable now, he's been a wonderful patient."

Diamond to shine bright at Catterick

By MIKE FRANCIS

DIAMOND VEGA appears to have been found a good spot to get back to winning ways when Ralph Beckett sends her to Catterick for the Download The Vickers. Bet App Handicap.

Just two starts ago she was sent off a 4-1 chance for the Listed Bosra Sham Fillies' Stakes at Newmarket and now finds herself in a 0-80.

That seems a fair fall from grace, but she has only had one outing this season, which was not devoid of promise.

She reappeared at the end of June in a six-furlong fillies' handicap at Newmarket but was too keen to do herself justice, fading in the closing stages.

Dropped 2lb to a mark of 81, on the basis of her debut second at Kempton and easy Haydock win she would look well treated.

Now is also a good time for three-year-olds to take advantage of the weight-for-age system against their elders and Beckett is never one to miss such chances.

His Campaign Trail should also be able to see off his two opponents in the Watch Racing TV Now Restricted Maiden Stakes.

Declan Carroll's team

obviously expected a decent run from Willolarupi on his debut as he was only a 5-1 chance when he finished second at Musselburgh.

On another day he might have won as he was slowly away and green throughout before coming off second best to a Karl Burke-trained juvenile who had the benefit of a run.

Given two weeks to get over those exertions, the son of Camacho is likely to be all the sharper for it, and he looks the one to beat in the British Stallion Studs EBF Restricted Novice Stakes.

Catch Cunningham's form figures are less than inspiring to say the least but he is beginning to look dangerously well handicapped.

Kevin Ryan's sprinter began the season with a rating of 82, having won a decent pot at York in September off 79.

In two of his four runs this season he has lost almost any chance coming out of the stalls while in his other two races he was too keen for his own good.

Should he do things the right way round then he will begin to look extremely well treated off just 72 in the 5th Regiment Royal Artillery Handicap.

Tangled Up In Blue caught a bit of a tarter last time out and may find things easier in the Bailey Cook Financial Planning EBF Restricted Maiden Stakes at Bath.

Third to the 82-rated Matloob on debut, Adam West sent her to Yarmouth last week but she was no match for Burke's Harvanna, who has now won two out of three and looks above average.

On both occasions Tangled Up In Blue has been doing her best work at the finish so the extra half a furlong here should be right up her street.

Mick Appleby's Mobashr looks the one to be on in the Freedom Apprentice Handicap at Yarmouth.

Class

A winner at Doncaster in early July, he was an unlucky loser back on Town Moor when short of room on several occasions last time out.

As a result he can run off the same mark and looks like he has more to offer.

John and Thady Gosden's Bibendum catches the eye on paper in the Diomed EBF Maiden Stakes.

A €260,000 purchase, the Showcasing colt is out of a half-sister to the top-class sprinter Reverence.

Stablemate Battista should also open his account at the third time of asking in the Sky Sports Racing Sky 415 Restricted Novice Stakes at Wolverhampton.

Fourth behind the 86-rated New Business on debut, he was third to Imperial Emperor next time, who went off 5-2 in a Listed race last week behind Nostrum.

Secret Trix can bring up a hat-trick in the Drywall Contracts National Handicap Hurdle at Uttoxeter following two wins at Southwell.

Leopards pounce on road to glory

LAM PROUD AS LEIGH STAKE CLAIM FOR LEADERS SHIELD

LEIGH coach Adrian Lam said his side produced their "gutsiest win of the season" after fighting back from 22-10 down to beat Salford 24-22 at the AJ Bell Stadium, closing the gap on leaders Catalans Dragons to just two points.

Stand-off Ben Reynolds kicked a penalty from almost the halfway line as Leigh capped a stirring comeback against the Red Devils to record their first away win in Salford since 1983.

The game was locked at 22-22 when Reynolds stepped up to attempt the penalty after Leigh had recovered from a 12-point deficit against a Salford side desperate for a win after four straight defeats.

"I knew there wasn't an issue with the distance," said Lam when asked about Reynolds' chances of kicking the goal.

"The wind was at his back so I knew if he got it on target, it'd go over."

Ken Sio, King Vuniyayawa,

RUGBY LEAGUE
By JACK FARLEY

Andy Ackers and Ben Hellewell all scored tries for Salford while Marc Sneyd kicked three goals from four attempts. However, he missed a drop goal attempt with nine minutes remaining which proved costly.

Leigh, who have now won 12 of their last 13 games in all competitions, had scorers in Ed Chamberlain, Ricky Leutele, Lachlan Lam and Zak Hardaker while Reynolds kicked four goals from five attempts.

Proud

Salford had led 16-10 at half-time and then 22-10 early in the second half but they could not kill off the challenge of Leigh, who next week take on St Helens in the semi-finals of the Challenge Cup at Warrington's Halliwell Jones Stadium.

Lam continued: "I'm ecstatic – really, really proud of them."

"There have been some close games against Salford already this season and we knew it would go down to the last 10 minutes. In both those games we had been in positions to win but didn't make it. Today we did it.

"I'm really proud of them considering we had a couple of late changes. We had Edwin Ipape pull out through illness then Aaron Smith who was down to replace him.

"So, we had to start Joe Mellor at hooker and I'm very proud of the way he played.

"Late disruptions mess up your momentum but with the Challenge Cup semi-final in six days it wasn't worth risking Edwin today.

"Tonight, we sit outright second on the ladder and are 80 minutes away from Wembley.

"We had 2,000 fans backing us today so I'm delighted for them."

Salford coach Paul Rowley said: "I thought it was our game for us to lose. We were in control but we were the masters of our own downfall.

"We have had three tight affairs with Leigh this season and they are a team that won't go away. We probably took a few shortcuts and our lack of discipline proved our undoing.

"Leigh are a team that come alive in your half and our lack of discipline with and without the ball was lacking.

"It was a reflection of our form and it's something we need to improve on if we want to progress for the remainder of the season.

"We still had enough opportunities to get the job done but Leigh would never go away."

■ HULL FC head coach Tony Smith hailed the impact of his bench in securing victory over Castleford.

Hull blasted their way to a 36-18 win thanks to the interchanges, especially prop Chris Satae and hooker Brad Dwyer.

"Big Chris was fantastic with the way he ran the ball and the work that he did for us," said Smith. "At times he was almost unstoppable.

He certainly lifted us."

HOPEFUL: Sciver-Brunt

Nat: We can beat Aussies

NAT Sciver-Brunt feels drawing the Women's Ashes series would reward the progress that England have made this summer.

Australia, the world's number one side, retained the Ashes on Sunday with a tense three-run victory in the second ODI at the Ageas Bowl, taking an unassailable 8-6 lead in the multi-format series.

But England would level matters by winning the final ODI game in Taunton on Tuesday and secure a second series win to boot after prevailing 2-1 in the T20 matches.

"For the series to be drawn on points it would bring some pride to our performances and the way we've gone about things," said all-rounder Sciver-Brunt.

"Another series win would certainly have a nice ring to it.

"The way we've gone about things has been positive and our mindset doesn't change too much from that.

"We'll make sure we're in a good place and park our feelings from Sunday, using that ODI series win potentially as a motivator."

England captain Heather Knight described this Women's Ashes battle as the "best ever series" after England's tight defeat in Southampton.

Sciver-Brunt, who almost got the hosts over the line on Sunday with an unbeaten 111 from 99 balls, believes the series has left a lasting legacy on women's cricket.

She said: "It's the first time we've played at big grounds and there has been a new strategy of going about marketing. It has been a bit of a game-changer.

"Hopefully that can continue when it's not such a big series on the line and we can draw that same excitement about our team and the way we play, not just depending on the opponent."

Australia's Alana King said she did not see the gap between the two sides "closing any time soon".

Sciver-Brunt insists the margins are smaller – "we're not that far apart but on the pressure moments they've got the edge on us a little bit" – and believes England have exceeded the public's expectations, if not their own, by making the series such a competitive affair.

Her heroics on Sunday almost kept England's hopes alive and she said of that fabulous knock: "I'm not really sure it's sunk in for me yet."

Moeen's going all in for victory

ALI READY TO BAT AT THREE

GOLDEN OLDIES: Moeen and Anderson (below)

CONFIDENT: Hazlewood

Hazlewood puts brakes on Bazball

AUSTRALIA seamer Josh Hazlewood believes his side have had some success in curbing England's 'Bazball' during this summer's Ashes.

The tourists cannot claim to have put an iron grip on their rivals' overall run-rates, with England scoring more quickly in their third Test win at Headingley than they did in losing efforts at Edgbaston and Lord's.

Their scoring rate of 5.08 in the chase was their highest of the series, but there have been several passages of play where they have settled into traditional methods.

Hazlewood feels the Australian attack is making a dent.

"Yeah, I think so, to a degree. We've maybe changed a little bit the way they've played," he said.

"Conditions probably dictate that as well. It's the situation of the game all the time when those type of players come in and play those shots and it's a lot of contributing factors, I think.

"But we can take a positive look at that and say that we might have changed it a little bit. If it's a good wicket, they're coming hard, and it's sort of a long one-day game, T20. It's been exciting, but I feel like we've done a reasonable job of containing them from time to time.

"I've really enjoyed it. I think it's been a great challenge. After you play cricket for a long time, it's not that you get sick of the same old stuff. It's probably brought the best out in a few of our guys.

"It was exciting from the get-go. We've maybe changed a little bit the way they've played."

Hazlewood is set to return to the side in place of Scott Boland in Manchester, where he took six wickets to help Australia retain the urn four years ago.

They ended up drawing that series 2-2 and the prize is even bigger this time, with a win enough to seal a first outright victory on English soil since 2001.

"I'm hugely excited, I've got fond memories of the last time in 2019 so it's good to be back," he said.

"Obviously I sat the last game out, but I feel better for it. It was probably the right call now I can sit back and look at the big picture. I was desperate to play, but now it makes sense.

"Hopefully, after that little break, I'll come out firing again."

ENGLAND are hoping to prove that "old is gold" after banking on a vintage attack for their must-win Ashes Test at Emirates Old Trafford.

With record wicket-taker James Anderson returning to the XI less than two weeks before his 41st birthday, the home side are set to roll out the oldest pace attack in Ashes cricket since the Australian class of 1928.

That was the last time either side fielded four seamers aged 33 or above, a bar England will clear with ease when local favourite Anderson joins 37-year-old Stuart Broad, 34-year-old Chris Woakes and Mark Wood, the baby of the group at 33.

Their last twentysomething, Ollie Robinson, made way for Anderson after struggling with back spasms during last week's win at Headingley, and England's collection of veterans even extends to 36-year-old spinner Moeen Ali.

"I was always told that old was gold," said the all-rounder, who will continue to bat at number three in Manchester.

"Somebody said it was the oldest attack since 1920-something. As somebody who's quite old, I think it's a great thing to be part of.

"But it's not just old, it's Jimmy, it's Broady, Woakesy, Woody – they're really good bowlers, good guys and hopefully they can get some wickets.

"You always know what you're

going to get, especially from those four seamers. Myself...you never know what you're going to get, but with those guys you definitely know how good they are."

Just a few short weeks ago Moeen was happily enjoying his red-ball retirement, only deciding to return to the fray after Jack Leach's injury left England without an experienced spinner.

Now, as well as performing an important job with the ball, he finds himself pulling double duty in the pivotal number three position that was vacated when Ollie Pope dislocated his shoulder at Lord's.

Settle

Harry Brook briefly inherited the mantle in the third Test but moved back down to his preferred position at five for the fourth innings and produced a knock of 75.

Moeen had initially volunteered to go up the order on a one-off basis but has been persuaded to remain in place to allow Brook to settle in the middle order.

That is entirely in keeping with an international career that has been built around selflessness and flexibility, occupying every spot from one to nine over the course of 66 Test caps as well as performing a variety of roles in the white-ball set-up.

"I just thought it was best for the team and the other guys more than myself," he admitted.

"That's the most important thing. I think Brooky is a great player and will be a great player, I just personally feel five is great for him. The impact he can have there is much more than he probably can at three at the moment. I just feel right now, for the team, it's probably best I go three. I feel fine about it."

Moeen has five Test centuries to his name but the last of those came in December 2016 and, although he is deliberately cautious about his latest positional change, he is also open to the idea of concluding his career with a dream finish.

"You've got to be a bit realistic. If it happens it would be amazing and I would absolutely love that, but I don't ever look too far ahead," he said.

"We'll see, if I'm playing well and I get in I have made Test hundreds before and it's not like I can't do it. It's just when you've been out of Test cricket a while...even before the series, I wasn't actually that worried about my bowling. It was more the batting.

"But things happen for a reason. I genuinely believe that and I've always believed it. That's why when the call came (to come out of retirement) I thought it's an opportunity I can't turn down.

Landmarks

"I'm a big one on faith and destiny and all that. It would be amazing to win an Ashes and finish Test cricket properly."

Moeen's comeback has already yielded one significant milestone – reaching 200 Test wickets at Headingley – and he now stands just 23 away from 3,000 runs.

Only 15 players have ever achieved both landmarks, including three Englishmen in Sir Ian Botham, Andrew Flintoff and Broad.

Moeen joked: "I think that means more to my dad!

"It would mean a lot to me as well, but dad is the one who is buzzing for it. Hopefully I can get there. I think it would make my family proud."

BRUV FITZ THE BILL FOR MATT

MATT Fitzpatrick thinks playing in the final group in the Open with his brother would be his "worst nightmare", but concedes his own record in the event makes that unlikely.

Alex Fitzpatrick will make his major debut at Royal Liverpool after qualifying at West Lancashire Golf Club a fortnight ago in a field which contained Sergio Garcia, Graeme McDowell and Jamie Donaldson.

GOLF By PAUL THOMAS

Older brother Matt is a major champion following his victory in the US Open at Brookline last year and has been giving Alex the benefit of his wisdom ahead of Thursday's first round.

However, the Ryder Cup star is well aware that he has yet to record even a top-15 finish in the Open, with his best result a tie for 20th at Royal Portrush in 2019.

"The Open is my weakest major, so my expectations have probably got to match my previous results," said Fitzpatrick, who travelled to Hoylake on the back of a missed cut in the Scottish Open.

"I've got to be realistic about where I am, where my game is. It's not obviously where I would like it to be. I think everyone would be like to be playing like Rory and Scottie Scheffler.

"I think for me, a good finish, all jokes aside, would be kind of top 30 this week, I really do."

Asked if he could pinpoint why his Open form was so poor, Fitzpatrick said: "No, I couldn't really tell you.

"If I had to play one last round in the world, I wouldn't choose a links golf course. Don't get me wrong, I love playing great links. I love Muirfield and Turnberry, this place is fantastic, as well.

"There's loads of great places. It's just for me it doesn't necessarily suit my eye."

The Fitzpatricks are not the only brothers in the field after Nicolai Hojgaard secured one of the qualifying places to join his brother Rasmus on the Wirral.

Nightmare

Before this week, Edoardo and Francesco Molinari were the last brothers to play in the Open at St Andrews in 2015.

"I've almost wanted to give Francesco and Edoardo a call and ask them what it's like, what's the dynamic like between you? Is it weird?" Fitzpatrick said.

"People ask, what would you do if you were in the final group with Alex on Sunday and I said, well, that would be kind of my worst nightmare, to be honest.

"I remember when I first got on Tour, Alex was still at my golf club and members would come up to him all the time asking how's Matt doing? Not, how are you doing?"

"I understand how it feels now because it's the other way around.

"I totally get how it is and I'm sure for him growing up it was probably very annoying. It's hard for him to kind of have his own identity and have his own game.

"People thinking 'oh he's got to be like his brother and stuff', when actually we are polar opposites, both on and off the course."

LIV AND LET LIV SAYS CHAMP SMITH

CAMERON Smith insists he does not have a point to prove as he returns to defend the Open title he won just weeks before defecting to LIV Golf last year.

The Australian was well on his way to becoming world No.1 when he saw off Rory McIlroy in the final round at St Andrews to win his first major, but rumours were already circulating about a potential switch of tours.

He dodged the question in his winner's press conference but less than six weeks later he had signed up with LIV and left the PGA Tour behind.

Smith has had top-10 finishes in two of the three majors this year but defending his title brings with it another level of pressure and he was asked whether returning to play in front of British crowds as a LIV golfer made any difference.

"I don't think so. I don't think there's any added motivation there," said the 29-year-old, who has won twice on the LIV Tour, most less than a fortnight ago in the London event.

"We're all here to win the Claret Jug and any one of these guys, if they have their week, is going to walk away with it.

"I think LIV aside, I'm determined to try my best every week and just try and be a better golfer than I was last week."

So had a life-changing 12 months as a major champion and major player on the LIV scene changed him in any way?

"I think the person is the same. I think my old boy would give me a clip around the ears if I was any different," he added.

"I think as a golfer, I think I'm actually a better golfer now than what I was last year.

"I've never tried too much to worry about what people thought of me and I think LIV was really well received in Australia.

"They were the two most important things to me. I think when I went down to Australia to play the PGA and the Open, at the end of the year there was no uproar of me switching tours.

"They were just happy to see me there playing golf. That was awesome."

His feelings on handing back the Claret Jug at Royal Liverpool came as a surprise, however, as he got unexpectedly emotional handing back the trophy to R&A chief executive Martin Slumbers at Hoylake.

"I just had to hand back the trophy there. I thought I was going to do all right but I was actually holding back from tears," he said.

"A bit of a moment, I guess, that crept up on me. It wasn't hard to hand it back, I wasn't like not letting it go, but it was just a bit of a moment that I guess you don't think about and then all of a sudden it's there."

BATTLE TO KEEP ENGLAND SK

BAYERN BUYING HARRY?

Germans still confident of deal for Kane after striker meets new boss

NEW Tottenham head coach Ange Postecoglou has admitted last week's meeting with Harry Kane was "nothing earth-shattering" but still a good chat amid Bayern Munich's growing efforts to lure the forward to Germany.

Kane has entered the final 12 months of his contract with Spurs and speculation over his future has heightened in recent weeks.

The England captain returned to training on Wednesday and held a meeting with Postecoglou, but the Australian has played down its significance.

Postecoglou told reporters at a press conference from the WACA Ground in Perth: "I had a good chat with Harry.

"Nothing earth-shattering as people are seeking. Just a good chat, introduced myself, spoke about the club and where we can improve."

Bayern appeared to up the ante regarding Kane at the weekend with the club's honorary president Uli Hoeness claiming an agreement over personal terms had been reached with the Spurs forward.

"Harry Kane has clearly signalled in all conversations that his decision stands – and if he keeps to his word then we'll get him, because then Tottenham will have to buckle," Hoeness told German TV channel Sport1.

"Kane wants to play internationally and luckily for us Tottenham will not be active internationally next year.

"He now has another opportunity to come to a top football club in Europe.

"Up to now, the father and the brother have always stood by what they promised. If it stays that way, that's OK."

Kane was spotted interacting with Tottenham chairman Daniel Levy upon arriving in Australia this weekend for the club's tour of Perth, Bangkok and Singapore.

While Bayern continue to push to secure the services of the England captain and have reportedly lodged two bids for the forward, Spurs' stance remains the same, they have no intention of selling Kane.

Clever

Spurs' record goalscorer has also been offered a new contract that is a significant increase on his current £200,000-a-week terms.

Kane is yet to make a decision on the new deal but Tottenham and chairman Levy continue to stand firm on their desire to keep the striker.

Bayern honorary president Hoeness added: "Levy is clever, he doesn't name a number. First we have to get him to name a number he wants.

"Of course he plays for time. I think he's a savvy, super professional, I appreciate him a lot – but I don't think there are people on the other side who have been doing it since yesterday."

Across North London, Mikel Arteta wants to take a closer look at Folarin Balogun during Arsenal's pre-season before deciding on the talented striker's future.

The 22-year-old academy graduate enjoyed a breakthrough season in France last season, scoring an impressive 21 goals for Ligue 1 side Stade de Reims.

Balogun has no plans to go out on loan again this term and the United States international has been linked with a permanent exit, with Inter Milan also reportedly interested.

Arsenal are said to value the striker at £50million and boss Arteta wants a closer look at the attacker during the pre-season of the United States.

"Obviously he's done incredibly well and now we have to think what is best to do," the Spaniard said.

"But we want to see him, we want to experience him in the next few games. He played the last game against Nurnberg and he will do in the next few games. Then we will make the best decision."

Focused

Arsenal are in Washington DC to play against Wayne Rooney's MLS All-Stars. It means a quick return to the States for Balogun, who helped the US win the Nations League last month.

Asked if he is looking to move, Balogun said: "I was away for the year and just back so focused on pre-season with the team."

"It's nice to see everyone and stuff but I am really just focused here."

Chelsea are another London club who have been busy, completing the signing of Brazilian teenager Angelo Gabriel as new boss Mauricio Pochettino looks to add talented youth to his squad.

The 18-year-old winger, who became the youngest player in the history of Brazil's national championship when he made his senior debut at the age of 15 years and 308 days, has joined the Blues from Santos with 129 first-team appearances under his belt.

Gabriel's fee and the length of his contract have not been confirmed, although reports have suggested he has cost Chelsea £13million.

A statement on the club's official website said: "Chelsea have completed the signing of Brazilian winger Angelo Gabriel from Santos."

"Born in Brasilia, the 18-year-old arrives at Stamford Bridge with a wealth of senior football under his belt; he made 129 first-team appearances for Santos across all competitions."

JIM: UTD ARE NOT DUN FOR

JIM Goodwin wants to banish the negativity around Dundee United after a humiliating beginning to the new campaign.

The Tannadice kicked the season off in the worst possible fashion on Saturday by losing their opening Vlaplay Cup match away to a Spartans side freshly promoted to League Two from the Lowland League.

There were unsavoury scenes at full-time, with United coach Dave Bowman reacting angrily as the players made their way back to the dressing rooms. "The fans are entitled to vent their frustration," said Goodwin. "It was a disappointing game for everybody and emotions run high after games."

"We understand the disappointment. When you're in this industry, you've got to take the criticism when it comes your way. Hopefully we'll not have too many moments like that throughout the campaign."

Rashford commits career to Man Utd

MARCUS Rashford has signed a new five-year deal to stay at Manchester United.

The 25-year-old forward came through the Old Trafford youth set-up and has gone on to score 123 goals in 359 first-team appearances.

Rashford broke the 30-goal barrier for the first time in his United career last season and his current deal was due to expire next summer.

By JOHN ANTHONY

Now Midweek Sport understands the England international has agreed terms on a contract until 2028, meaning he'll play for the Red Devils until he's in his 30s.

Rashford's contract could soon be followed by the arrival of Inter Milan goalkeeper Andre Onana.

A deal is understood to be getting closer for the Cameroon international, who worked under Erik ten Hag at Ajax and is wanted as a replacement for long-serving David De Gea.

The sticking point is thought to be the transfer fee with United wanting to pay less than £40m with the Italians pushing for £50m.
